FROM THE PASTOR'S

Today's readings proclaim one central truth: "the Lord alone is God, and we belong wholly to Him."

In the first reading, God speaks through Isaiah to Cyrus, the powerful Persian king: "I am the Lord and there is no other." Although Cyrus does not know the Lord, he is still guided by God's providence. Every king, president, nation, and earthly authority remains subject to the Lord, who alone governs history.

Psalm 96 continues this proclamation: "Great is the Lord and highly to be praised." The gods of the nations are idols, but the Lord made the heavens. We too must guard against the idols of our age—money, power, success, comfort, political loyalty, and the desire for human approval.

In the Gospel, the Pharisees try to entrap Jesus over the question of paying taxes to Caesar. Jesus asks them whose image is inscribed on the coin. "Caesar's," they reply. Jesus then says: "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God the things that are God's." Christians are called to respect legitimate authority, fulfill civic responsibilities, and pray for those who govern. Yet our conscience, worship, and ultimate obedience belong to God alone.

The coin bears Caesar's image, but every human person bears the image and likeness of God. Therefore, while we give proper respect to earthly responsibilities, we must give our whole selves to the Lord.

St. Paul reminds us what this looks like: a faith that works, a love that labors, and a hope that endures in Christ. May our words, choices, and actions reveal the image of the One to whom we belong.

Fr Denzil Vithanage

Las lecturas de hoy proclaman una verdad fundamental: "Solo el Señor es Dios, y le pertenecemos por completo".

En la primera lectura, Dios habla a través de Isaías a Ciro, el poderoso rey persa: "Yo soy el Señor, y no hay otro". Aunque Ciro no conoce al Señor, la providencia divina lo guía. Todo rey, presidente, nación y autoridad terrenal está sujeto al Señor, quien es el único que gobierna la historia.

El Salmo 96 continúa esta proclamación: "Grande es el Señor, digno de toda alabanza". Los dioses de las naciones son ídolos, pero el Señor creó los cielos. Nosotros también debemos protegernos de los ídolos de nuestra época: el dinero, el poder, el éxito, la comodidad, la lealtad política y el deseo de aprobación humana.

En el Evangelio, los fariseos intentan tenderle una trampa a Jesús con el tema del pago de impuestos al César. Jesús les pregunta de quién es la imagen que aparece en la moneda. "Del César", responden. Jesús dice entonces: "Dad al César lo que es del César, y a Dios lo que es de Dios". Los cristianos estamos llamados a respetar la autoridad legítima, cumplir con nuestras responsabilidades cívicas y orar por quienes nos gobiernan. Sin embargo, nuestra conciencia, nuestra adoración y nuestra obediencia final pertenecen solo a Dios.

La moneda lleva la imagen del César, pero cada persona humana lleva la imagen y semejanza de Dios. Por lo tanto, si bien debemos respetar debidamente nuestras responsabilidades terrenales, debemos entregarnos por completo al Señor.

San Pablo nos recuerda cómo se manifiesta esto: una fe que obra, un amor que trabaja y una esperanza que perdura en Cristo. Que nuestras palabras, decisiones y acciones reflejen la imagen de Aquel a quien pertenecemos.
